Public Reading Room
Provided In Church

The recently completed building of the local Christian Science Society will be opened for the first service on Sunday. The opening day will be marked by three services; one at 11 a. m.; one at 3 p. m.; and one at 8 p. m. The public is invited to all of these services.

The Christian Science Church is located at the corner of Brewster and Elwood streets. It is a small church, but no pains have been spared to make it one of the most beautiful on the peninsula. The plans and design for the building was the work of Henry Gutterman of San Francisco, and the contract was performed by the Mountain Construction Company of Mountain View.

The cost of building the church was $21,400 including a fine pipe organ. The building is of the English type and includes a number of rooms. The auditorium which occupies the front part of the building, has a seating capacity of 200. Behind this room are two reading rooms, a musicians room and a public reading room. The latter is open to the public every afternoon from 2 o'clock, except Sundays and holidays.

The planning of the building and its construction were to a large extent the results of the labor of the building committee of the society. Of this committee, Mrs. C. D. Jessup was chairman. The other members were Julius Smith and Mrs. C. C. Graves.

The Christian Science Society of this city was organized about three years ago, and has made unusual progress in this section. Meetings of the society have been held in the clubhouse of the Redwood City Women's Club.

The renovation of the building was agreed to by officials of the railroad company, following a meeting with members of the Redwood City Chamber of Commerce. The railroad men also agreed to arrange a piece of vacant land on the opposite side of the tracks to be used as a parking space for the cars of commuters.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Grieve are here visiting with the latter's mother and sister, Mrs. A. E. McNeely and Mrs. Stanley L. Netherton. The visitors are from Nevada.

WORKMEN BUSY ON DEPOT REMODELING

A crew of men employed by W. P. Jones, Berkeley contractor, has been busy this week remodeling the northern Pacific station here. The tract, which requires several weeks for completion, re-arrangement of the dressing rooms, complete refitting of the waiting room and repainting the exterior of the building.

THE MODERN BANK

In the modern bank the officers know not only local conditions but national ones. The modern bank governs its policies by the future, not by the past. Prompt, courteous service is actually given, not simply talked about, in the modern bank.

Progressive, modern business men find not only the ability but the willingness for full cooperation in this modern bank.

For March 7th

An important meeting will be held on Thursday evening at the McKinley school, at which time Prof. Cotrell of Stanford University will discuss the proposed city charter. All citizens are urged to attend. The meeting is to be held under the auspices of the Citizens Charter Committee.

School to Send
Two to New York

Sufficient funds are now available, according to Miss Eunice Schmidt, teacher of journalism at the Sequoia Union High School, to send two representatives of the school to New York to compete in a national contest for high school papers.

The Sequoia Times, published by the students of the Sequoia Union High School, has received a first place rating in the state for three years, and it is thought that the national contest to be held at Columbia University.

The school will be represented by Miss Schmidt, the faculty advisor, and Stanley Netherton, Jr., business manager of the paper. They will leave Saturday for New York and will be away about 18 days.

Truck Crashed by Railroad Engine

A heavy motor truck belonging to the Pioneer Wrecking Co. of San Carlos, and driven by C. M. Valva, proprietor of the wrecking concern, was completely wrecked shortly after noon Tuesday when struck by a fast north bound Southern Pacific train. The crash occurred as the truck was making his first crossing north of Cordell Creek. The truck stalled on the crossing just in front of the train. The driver jumped to safety and abandoned the truck.

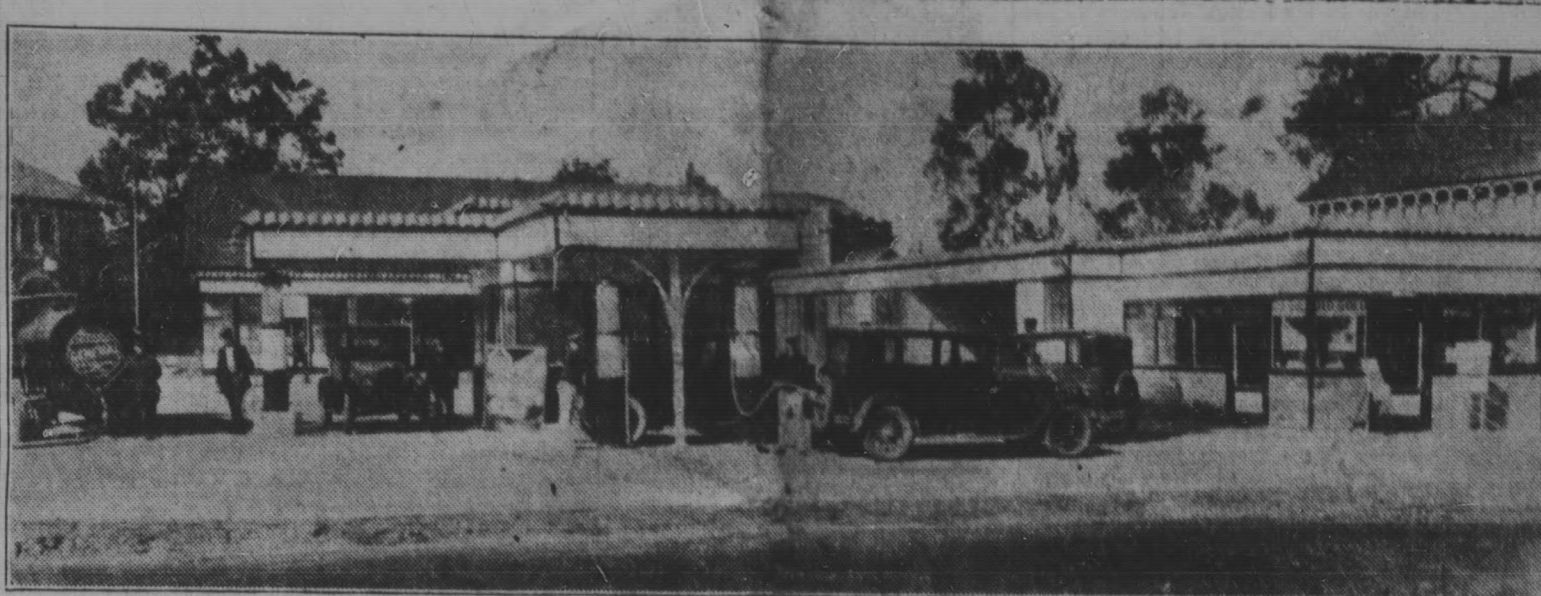

When the train struck the machine, the wrecked truck was dragged for almost a quarter of a mile, and was reduced to a mass of wreckage. The front of the locomotive was also somewhat damaged and the front wheels were derailed.

Traffic on the railroad line was tied up for almost an hour before the wreckage and the engine placed again on the rails.

Chicken Thieves
Take Hens From Deputy Sheriff

The height of something or other is to steal chickens from a deputy sheriff, but Tuesday night some thief did just that thing. Sometime during the night twelve choice white leghorn hens were removed from the hen house of Lawrence Neri, deputy in the office of Sheriff J. J. McGrath. Frank Alhain, next-door neighbor of Neri, reported losing 18 chickens on the same night.

SCHOOL
WEEK
PLANNEDRedwood City Will Join State In Observance

The tenth annual observance of public schools week in California will be held this year during the week beginning on April 22nd, according to the announcement made by Gus A. Huttuff, grand master of Masons of California. Although originally instituted as a Masonic function and celebrated only in lodge rooms the development of interest in the activities of the week has become so marked that it has assumed the proportions of a state-wide community event.

Last year there were over 500 meetings held throughout the state in school auditoriums and public halls participated in by parent teacher associations, city, county and state officials and civic, commercial and fraternal organizations.

In his proclamation Huttuff says: "Every child should share in the fullness and richness of the opportunity for success which is made possible through education."

"It becomes our duty, therefore, as citizens to do all in our power to support such a worthy cause as Public Schools week. It should particularly be remembered that Public Schools Week is a community affair in which we seek the active co-operation of all local civic organizations and the participation of all the people in the community. The celebration this year will be held during the week beginning April 22nd."

Plans for the participation of this community have been made by Walter W. Hilton, master of Redwood City Lodge No. 168, F. & A. M. A committee of which Donald Bogie is chairman, is making arrangements for the observance of the occasion here and is planning a meeting which will be addressed by an able speaker.

Kiwanians Hear
Hard Water Ills

Hard water and its effects on pipes were topics of a talk given before the Redwood City Kiwanis Club Wednesday by P. A. Watson, a representative of Crane & Co., the plumbing supply house of San Francisco. He showed samples of pipe taken from houses in Redwood City, which were corroded and blocked by lime deposits, and also showed the comparative hardness of the water here by means of the soap test. The chairman of the meeting was Philip E. Brand.

HEIRS SEEK SALE OF ESTATE RANCH

William Maloney, Thomas Maloney and Cornelius Maloney are named defendants in a suit to force the sale of certain property of which they are heirs. The suit was brought by five other heirs of the same property who seek to have the property sold and divided. The plaintiffs are Mary Maloney, Nora M. Morey, Margaret Cullen, Katherine Clothier, Francis Maloney and James Maloney.

The property in question consists of four parcels of the old Pulgas Rancho and is now held in joint tenancy by the heirs.

Baptists Baking Boston Beans

The Women's Society of the First Baptist Church of this city will give a Boston baked bean dinner at the church on Tuesday, March 5th. Dinner will be served on that evening from 6:30 to 7:30 at 50 cents a plate. Everyone is welcome.

Alturas — Pickering Lumber Co. to construct large mill here. Petaluma — 28 carloads of eggs shipped during recent week.

AUTOMOTIVE STATION TO
OPEN HEREComplete Equipment
For All Needs of Cars

Every need of the motorist can be taken care at a new automotive station to be opened this morning at the corner of Main and Webster streets. Arrangements have been made here to supply every requirement from cigars for the driver in the front seat to gas for the tank at the rear.

The station contains a number of separate departments, including a gas and oil station operated by Frank Fitzpatrick and Charles Curran; a tire repair and sales department operated by Louis Lodi and Allen McKay; an auto electrical department by Sidney Christensen and a soft drink, tobacco and magazine stand by Sterling and Irving Burwell.

The new station occupies the Cullen corner, formerly occupied by the Cullen Company. It embodies all the latest approved ideas for filling stations. Gasoline will be supplied to customers from four quick action, self-measuring pumps. Oiling and greasing are taken care of on a fully equipped grease rack. Car washing and polishing will also be attended to here.

Miss Willits Will To Be Tried On March 29th, Here

March 29 has been set by Judge George H. Buck as the time for the trial of Miss Nettie Willits on charges of embezzlement. Miss Willits was for 12 years city clerk of San Bruno, and following her resignation from office was charged with six counts of embezzlement and one count of misappropriation of public funds. She has entered a plea of not guilty to all charges, and declares that the charges are the result of work of her political enemies.

LUMERMAN ARRESTED FOR CUTTING TREES

S. U. David, a lumberman, employed by the firm of Godeau & Godeau, casket manufacturers of San Francisco, was arrested Monday by Sheriff J. J. McGrath. David was charged with cutting trees on a public highway.

The arrest of the lumberman followed a report made at the meeting of the board of supervisors on Monday by Supervisor T. L. Hickey of South San Francisco. Hickey reported to the board that he had seen lumbermen cutting trees on a county right-of-way near Pescadero. The matter was referred by the board to Sheriff McGrath who went immediately to the scene of the alleged cutting, and arrested David.

The man was booked at the jail here and was later released on payment of $100 cash bail.

A large number of employees of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company attended the meeting of Redwood City Lodge No. 168 F. & A. M. last evening when the Third degree was conferred on a candidate for that lodge. The ritualistic work of the order was performed by a F. G. & E. team of San Francisco Rock Lodge of San Francisco, acted as master.

T. C. Rice, county auditor, returned home this week from Los Angeles where he has been visiting his son Kenneth Rice and family, and incidentally getting acquainted with his granddaughter. Clark reports the little miss as being very attractive, and that his wife will remain in the southern city quite some time in order to better know the little stranger.

BAY BRIDGE
OPENING TO
BE OBSERVEDPlans Made To Care
For Thousands of Spectators

Elaborate preparations are being made in San Mateo for the official opening of the bridge tomorrow which is to connect San Mateo county with Alameda county near Hayward. The opening of the new bridge is to be made a gala day throughout the county.

The exercises which will proceed the opening of the bridge will begin at 10 a. m. with the inspection of the bridge by federal, state, county and municipal officers, and officials of the bridge and construction companies. They will end at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, at which time the bridge will be thrown open to travel.

The actual opening of the bridge will be done by President Coolidge, who will press a button in his Washington office which will set in motion machinery which will drop the lift span into place.

The ceremonies are to be accompanied by a parade and by aerial exhibitions. The opening of the bridge is expected to draw thousands of visitors to this county and plans for handling an unprecedented crowd have been made by the San Mateo police department, which will be augmented by 45 extra officers from the police departments of other cities of the peninsula. Following the opening of the bridge, it will be thrown open for free travel for eight hours, and it is expected by officials of the bridge company that at least 100,000 cars will take advantage of this period.

The new station was made possible by Henry Beeger, distributor of General Petroleum products in this vicinity.

Youth Sentenced On Arson Charge

Judge George H. Buck last Saturday sentenced Ernest Sepulveda, 24, to San Quentin for a term of 1 to 25 years. Sepulveda confessed to burning a house in North Fair Oaks on January 31st for the purpose of obtaining the insurance money, with which, he stated he was going to buy an automobile.

Sepulveda was arrested in Monterey by Under Sheriff Edward Farrell, following an investigation of the fire by the Pacific Board of Underwriters.

WOODSIDE

Roy Hohberger took the Woodside Friendly Indians to Redwood City on Wednesday afternoon for a basketball game with the Blackfeet Indians at the Garfield school. The Blackfeet won the game.

The influence of these spring days is working strongly upon those of our population who spend their winters away from Woodside. Last Sunday found Dr. and Mrs. Alanson Weeks and family, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Gallagher and family, Mr. and Mrs. Elmore Avenall and family, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Field and family, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel P. Pond and family at their summer homes here planning an early return to the charms of Woodside.

Miss Margaret Stewart gave a card party for a number of her friends on Friday last.

Mrs. Virginia Miller, who has been spending the winter with her grandmother, Mrs. Rebecca Bogie, will leave soon to rejoin her husband in Portland.

Mrs. Lorna Fletcher is clearing her land on the Mountain Road and is preparing to build a summer home there.

The opening of the new Live Oak Market on Tuesday was quite a festive occasion in Woodside. It is unusually attractive in appearance and as completely equipped as any of the largest and most modern markets in San Francisco.

The new telephone switchboard was put into operation during Wednesday night, and early Thursday morning residents of Woodside were proving to themselves and their neighbors that they understood the operation of the dial system. William Jackson has been appointed local agent for the telephone company.

The lower grades of the Woodside School presented a very interesting "Health Program" on Thursday afternoon.

Girl Hurt As Car Crashes

Miss Martha Gordon, 15, of San Francisco is in a critical condition at the Community hospital as the result of an automobile accident, which occurred near here on the Woodside road Monday. The girl with Bessie Rumbold, 15, the driver of the car and two boys had driven down from the city in a reward. While negotiating a turn at high speed the car turned over three times.

The other occupants of the car escaped with minor injuries. The Gordon girl was injured internally. She was treated at the Redwood City hospital by Dr. Harper Peddicord, and later was removed to the Community hospital.

Writer Talks On Hawaiian Islands

Norris E. James, newspaper writer of Palo Alto, entertained the members of the Redwood City Exchange Club Tuesday evening with a talk on the customs of Hawaii. James was for some time engaged in newspaper work in the islands.

The chairman of the meeting was Colin Stokes. Wilbur Doozee gave the club a short talk on Henry W. Longfellow.

At the high school tomorrow night, the boys of Sequoia will celebrate their annual get-together, that being the date of the yearly Boys' Night. Cider and doughnuts, stunts, musical and dramatic entertainers and contests will be the features of the program, for which the boys pay 25 cents. Fathers of the attending boys are invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gibson and Mr. and Mrs. George Roberts attended the convention of canners held this week at Del Monte. The men are superintendent and assistant superintendent, respectively, of the local plant of the Pratt Low Preserving Co.

Sewage Bill In State Assembly

The bill of Senator H. C. Jones of San Jose, and introduced in the senate by him, which would provide an appropriation of $65,000 for the study of sewage disposal in the bay district has received the recommendation of the senate public health and quarantine committee, and has been referred to the finance committee.

The increase of population on the peninsula and around the bay is making a scientific disposal of sewage and industrial waste in this section imperative. One solution of the problem proposed would be the formation of a disposal district which would care for all communities on this side of the bay. The feasibility of this and other plans would be considered in the survey which Senator Jones' bill would provide.

Harbor Survey Is Planned for Bay

Plans for a complete survey of all available and potential industrial lands in San Francisco and San Mateo counties have just been completed by the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce Industrial Department.

This survey of lands would in the words of L. O. Head, Industrial Committee Chairman, "classify our merchandise and put it on the shelves where the prospective industrialist may readily examine it."

A letter and questionnaire requesting information regarding lands available for industrial development is being sent to all land owners, whose names could be secured from the records of the two Peninsula counties.

The National and American League organizations have appropriated $50,000 to help the American Legion defray the expenses of the junior baseball series throughout the nation. California will be grouped in a district with Utah, Nevada and Arizona for the district elimination trials. State Commander F. N. Belgrano, Jr., has been notified.

Fourteen players will be allowed on each team and all players must be enrolled before June 30 in their respective cities. American Legion Posts in the various communities will conduct the baseball tournament. To prevent the forming of all star-teams in the larger cities, from the ranks of the various high schools, it has been ruled that in counties having over 50,000 population, no team can draw players from more than one high school.

The winners of the national championship will be the guests of the major baseball leagues at the world's series this fall. The Legion's tournament will occupy most of the summer months, according to Commander Belgrano.

March 5th Set
For Lions Club
Installation

March 5th has been set as the date for the installation of the officers of the recently instituted club of Lions in this city. The officers were elected at a meeting of the club held last Thursday evening.

William B. Curran was elected as the first president of the new club. Ernest H. Werder is first vice-president; Eugene Cerqui, second vice-president; W. Vielhauser, secretary, and Charles Holt official "tail waiter." John E. Farrell, Joseph Leonard, Ambrose McSweeney and Dr. Francis Cruss are the board of directors. The club musician is Niel Collins and the editor of the "Lions Roar," the official club bulletin is William Vielhauser.

Natural Gas To Be Here In August

Crews of workmen of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company are busy installing a 20-inch pipe line through this county which will form a section of the line which will bring natural gas into the bay region this summer. The construction of this line and other equipment necessary for the transportation of the gas from the oil fields of Butteville and Kettleman Hills in Kern and Fresno counties is shown by the annual budget just issued by the company to be cared for by a special appropriation of $13,000,000.

The plans of the company include the construction of the pipe line, which will have a capacity of 125,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day. A $6,000,000 cubic foot holder for natural gas will be erected in San Francisco and a holder with a capacity of 8,000,000 will be built in Oakland. It is planned by the company to have natural gas delivered here in August.

Expecting to exceed last year's record when 123,000 school boys under 17 years of age participated in the junior baseball championship series of the American Legion, California officials of the Legion are completing their plans for the handling of the competition in this state.

The Redwood City Legion Post is sponsoring a team, which it is expected will make a brilliant showing in the Junior League. The team is being managed by Dr. R. C. Frazier and H. Beagle of the Legion Post, and is being coached by Norbert Lambert. Edward Prender is captain.

Eighteen boys are seeking places on this team, and according to Coach Lambert, there are enough first-class players to pick from that a team should stand a good chance of figuring in the league. Practices are being held regularly. Dan Sowers, chairman of the National Americanization Commission of the American Legion, has just completed a tour of California cities in the interest of the junior baseball tournament which last year was won by the Montgomery-Ward boys club of Oakland at Chicago.

The National and American League organizations have appropriated $50,000 to help the American Legion defray the expenses of the junior baseball series throughout the nation. FARM POULTRY

HATCH TURKEYS IN INCUBATORS

Eggs Given Same Treatment as the Ordinary Hen.

It takes 28 days but turkey eggs can be hatched in incubators just the same as hens' eggs. Turkey raisers in several parts of Colorado are saving hours and days of hard labor that way and in the eastern part of Wyoming it is almost the universal practice.

The big job is to get enough eggs together at one time for a full-sized setting. They should not be held for more than ten days, according to Charles N. Keen of the Colorado agricultural college, should be kept at a temperature of from 50 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit, and turned daily. The incubator should be thoroughly cleaned and disinfected then warmed to the correct temperature.

The temperature of hatching turkey eggs in the case of small machines, where the heat is at the top, may be one-half degree to one degree lower average than for hens' eggs. As a guide for those who do not have the instructions for their machine, the average temperature starts at about 101 degrees and increases to about 103 or 104 degrees the last week. If the eggs carry good fertility, the heat from the developing poult will gradually bring up the temperature of the machine.

Additional moisture is needed as with hens' eggs. (A tray of sand kept wet will supply it.) Turkey poult should not be taken from the incubator until they are thoroughly dried off and appear strong on their legs.

When the eggs are set under hens or turkey hens, steps should be taken to insure freedom from lice or mites as these parasites cause very serious losses among the young poult. The nest boxes should be sprayed before the eggs are set. The setting hen should be dusted thoroughly with saponified sodium fluoride or some other good lice powder at least three times during the latter part of the setting period, but prior to the twenty-fifth day.

Define Good Litter for Brooder House

There is no best litter to use in the brooder house, but there are certain requirements a litter must meet to be satisfactory. It should be light in weight, thus allowing the droppings and dirt to work to the floor so the chicks are less likely to come in contact with contaminated material; it should be absorbent, and therefore capable of keeping the floor of the brooder house dry; cheap, so one can afford to replace it every five days after the first four weeks; and should be clean, which means free from mold, mustiness and dust.

Shavings, cut straw and cut hay meet these requirements. These are not the only materials that one can use, but they are among the best. Straw or hay used for litter, should always be cut. If the straw or hay is not cut it becomes matted and covered with droppings, and is therefore of no value for litter.

Bacillary white diarrhea, coccidiosis, and intestinal worms are spread to a large extent by dirty litter, the Cornell experiment station warns. One rule in brooding chicks that should be followed, if all others are forgotten, is "clean the brooder house every five days." This means removing the litter, sweeping the floor of the brooder house, and putting in clean litter.

Poultry Hints

Do not condemn the late molting old hens, for they are very often our best and most continuous layers.

If the poultry house is not provided with ample window space so that the entire floor may be well lighted even during the winter days, additional windows should be put in.

The use of cod liver oil in rations for baby chicks that are hatched in early spring has been well established.

Egg-shell formation necessitates the use of large amounts of lime. Poor egg-shell texture is due to faulty supply or utilization of lime for the purpose.

Fewer chicks on new ground with good management will bring better returns than many chicks hatched and but few saved, by raising them with the flock on old ground.

Keep pullets away from the old hens so that they can be fed and handled differently.

Feed for setting hens should consist mostly of whole grains, such as corn and wheat. Green feeds and meat tend to make them desire to quit setting and begin laying.

Provide plenty of hopper space to give each chick a chance to eat. If the chicks are raised with hens there should be a feed coop that the large chickens cannot get into.

The vitamin A content of eggs may be increased by feeding the hens greens.

Plenty of clean, dry straw for the hens to work in goes a long way toward keeping them healthy and laying. Damp dirty litter is an incubator to hatch disease germs.

Chinese geese may be mated one gander to four or six geese, being somewhat larger matings than can be handled successfully with either of the other three breeds.

NOT SEEING OUR LIMITATIONS

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

It is wise, we say, for a man to realize his limitations. By so doing he does not rush into things for which he has no fitness; he does not attempt that which is beyond his powers of accomplishment.

I know, for instance, that I am not musical. I am neither a performer nor have I musical appreciation sufficient to criticize a performance to which I listen. For that reason I say nothing, and I am convinced that many of my friends whom I hear making wise comments upon this or that musical performance might better follow my example.

Ball has little or no sense of humor, and he has the judgment to realize his lack. He can never see the point of a joke even when it is explained to him in detail. If he laughs when some one tells a funny story it is to be polite, and not to put himself outside the circle, rather than because he is amused by the recital or understands what it is all about. But Ball never cracks a joke. He never launches out, as many people do, into a narrative intended to amuse and then forget the point and ends his tale without a climax. He knows his limitations and he wisely never goes beyond them.

"Wisely," I said, but I am not always sure that it is wise too acutely to realize one's weaknesses. Too keen a realization takes the energy out of one, robs him of initiative and makes one afraid at times to try anything.

We all thought Clancy less than ordinary when he was in college. He was handicapped in two ways. He did not have any money and so was forced to earn his living by acting as a sort of chore boy in one of the local stores at twenty cents an hour—a job which brought him only a meager subsistence—and in addition to this handicap he had a dull brain. Even his best friends admitted that Clancy was very ordinary. But somehow he himself never realized this fact. He stumbled along in his stupid way, insisting on being a leader. He had neither tact nor social finesse, but whenever anything political or social was under way Clancy was always on hand pushing himself to the front and insisting in a crude illiterate way on being heard.

No one thought he would make a success of his profession. He was too crude, too stupid, too lacking in the qualities which enable one to get on with men, but Clancy never recognized these limitations of his, and he has got on. It has never occurred to him that he is commonplace. He has put a good estimate upon his own abilities and with that in mind has forged ahead. In some way he has apparently fooled people and they have taken him at his own estimate. He is really quite the literary critic; his friends are among the best people in the city in which he lives. He has risen above his limitations.

Takes Lonely Position

Southampton, England.—An adventurous clergyman, Rev. Augustus Partridge, has sailed from here for his new station in "the world's loneliest island," Tristan da Cunha.

The dauntless padre—a bachelor—already has suffered the perils and hardships of frontier posts in distant South African and South American fields.

With his Bible and "vest pocket" organ, as inspiration and aids to his labors, Mr. Partridge is taking with him to Tristan a huge supply of rat poison. For rats are the fiercest creatures in this lonely ocean oasis.

The traveling preacher—still on the sunny side of middle age—has a vigorous frame and trim figure. It was just recently that he returned home to London from his ministry in Brazil. But when he heard that the chaplain at Tristan da Cunha was sick and must be relieved he volunteered at once for the unenviable task.

After serving during the war in the British Red Cross, Mr. Partridge entered the Anglican ministry and soon responded to the call for foreign service in the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel. He went out to South Africa and in the Johannesburg mining districts—rough and unruly as mining countries are—he took charge of three churches, one of these for natives.

"I had to rush about from one church to another on my motor bike," he said, in relating his adventures, "and they called me 'the Flying Parson.'"

Lash for Bootlegger

Representative James C. Putnam of Howell county, Missouri, who introduced a bill in the Missouri house of representatives which would establish the whipping post for the punishment of convicted bootleggers.

with blood. She had been attacked by some superstitious persons, both Christian and non-Christian, who charged that she had buried a charm in front of the church and caused the death of a native deacon.

"I put on all my canonical vestments to overawe the crowd. Then I went out and dug up the ground myself to show them there was no charm there. I had to excommunicate the church members who had attacked the poor woman."

After other like trials, Mr. Partridge was transferred across the Atlantic to Santos, the great Brazilian coffee port. The young clergyman found this city a strenuous field. Carousing sailors, reckless beach-combers, and down-and-outers of many nationalities destroyed the peace of the place and made his life one fight after another.

But in this new island station the preacher no longer will have to struggle with violent men and worse women. Tristan's population is not much more than 100. Its farmers and fishermen are described as moral and religious. Industrious and hospitable; they have no alcoholic liquors, and they have no crime among them.

The new chaplain will have charge of the education of the children of the island, who are contented prisoners on the little area of 16 square miles.

Runaway Building Nearly Wrecks Railroad Train

Red Wing, Minn.—A railway wreck was narrowly averted here when an engineer brought his train to a stop just a few feet short of a "runaway building" which blocked the tracks. The building, it may be explained, got away from workmen who were moving it from one location to another. The Chicago Great Western railway engineer saw the obstruction in time to halt his train. Workmen hacked away one corner of the building and the train continued its journey.

Ray Finds Radium

Pasadena, Calif.—When one of Dr. Robert A. Millikan's electroscopes, developed in connection with his cosmic ray experiments, was enlisted as a detective, a problem as difficult as "looking for a needle in a haystack" was solved within two hours.

Through the use of the delicate instrument $4,000 worth of radium which was accidentally thrown out with some ashes at the Pasadena hospital was recovered.

John Ransom, California Institute of Technology technician, was sent to the hospital with one of the cosmic ray machines and, after barrel after barrel of ashes had been brought in front of the electroscope the instrument indicated that radium was present in the last barrel.

While hospital officials anxiously watched the proceedings in the basement of the institution the barrel containing the capsule filled with fifty milligrams of the most precious substance in the world was emptied into small boxes. It was only when the observers were about to give up hope that the brass tube, about the size of a match-end, was discovered in the last box.

The electroscope, it was stated, picks up the radium emanations, being so sensitive that it can record them from a radiotele watch. Two quartz fibers that are suspended almost together are charged with electricity, which repels them. When the fibers are exposed to radium, which absorbs electricity from the air, they are brought together, the speed with which they approach each other indicating the amount of radium in the vicinity. No matter how minute the radium particles, the instrument is said to be capable of detecting them at a distance of 100 feet.

The radium which was recovered is the property of Dr. Paul Ferrier, and is one of the two largest supplies of the precious substance in this city.

Baby of No Cash Value

Ontario Court Decides

Hamilton, Ont.—Judge Elliot of Halton county has ruled that a nine-months-old child is of no cash value to its parents.

This ruling was made known recently in the suit of John Ashwood of Toronto against Ross McPhail of this city, for damages for the death of their son, William, in August, 1927. The men were involved in an auto crash near Oakville, the baby dying of a fractured skull.

The judge said a child was only a remote source of remuneration; that he was a liability, and that no allowance, but only sympathy, could go to the grief-stricken parents.

Dragons May Be Dead, but Their Blood Stays

Medan, Sumatra.—Fairy tales of knights and dragons may pass with more credulous generations, but trade in dragon blood goes on.

Only the modern dragon blood is a red gum obtained from the ripe fruit of palm trees growing in Siam and the Dutch East Indies, which finds prosaic uses in pharmacy and for coloring varnish.

Production is purely a native industry, the American consul reports. Although some natives have been planted to palms, most of them use the wild trees as a source of supply and sell the blood, obtained by steaming, crushing or both, to Chinese traders in the villages.

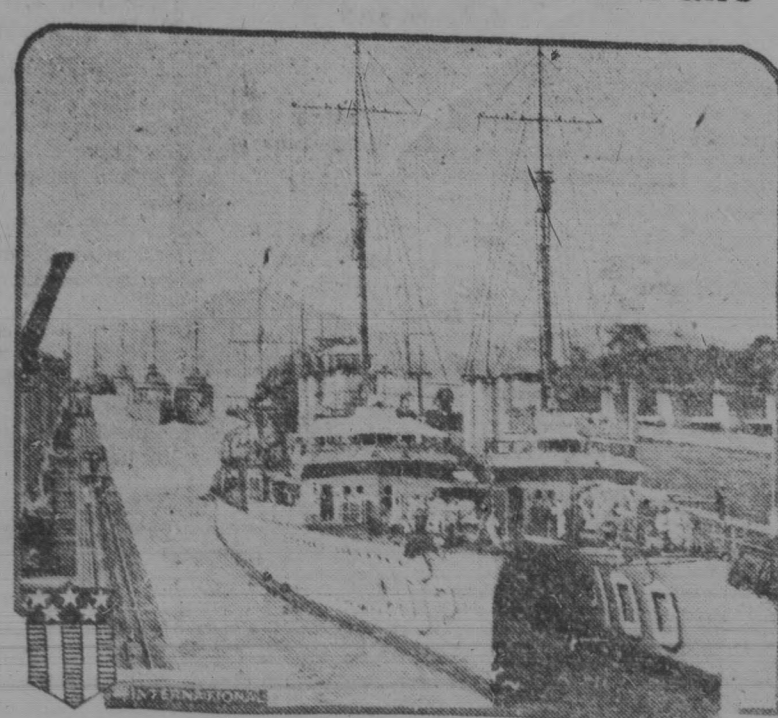

When traders have acquired considerable quantities they ship to Chinese dealers in Penang and Singapore, Straits Settlements, whence the material is exported to Europe and America.

Bees Buzz Busily for 800,000 in U. S.

Madison, Wis.—More than 800,000 people in the United States are keeping bees and the value of the honey crop runs from $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 annually, figures compiled by H. F. Wilson of the agricultural staff of the University of Wisconsin, reveal.

Wilson says beekeeping has splendid prospects for the future and great possibilities in almost every state. However, he insists, the industry lacks leadership and finance.

Filipino Students Told to Learn Trades in U. S.

Manila.—The Philippine government will henceforth tell students who are sent to the United States what courses to study. An oversupply of physicians and lawyers in the islands has led to a shortage of technically trained college graduates.

In view of the big demand for technologists and experts in the industrial arts they will be permitted to study only fish, meat and vegetable canning and other such industries.

Heretofore government students, or pensionnaires, as they are known locally, were free to choose their careers. In most instances they took up law, medicine, education and similar academic courses. Upon returning to the Philippines they found difficulty in obtaining work, since those professions were crowded. Many of them returned to the United States, thus yielding the Philippine government no return for the money spent for their education.

Is Broth of a Boy

Atlanta, Ga.—How would you like to be thirteen again—but seven feet two inches tall?

That is the age and height of Henry Mullins of Atlanta. He hopes to be a football star at Georgia Tech some day. Doctors say the trouble—if it can be called that—is caused by overactivity of the youth's pituitary gland, a ductless organ below the brain. Such overactivity causes the rise of most giants.

Henry Mullins is in the seventh grade in school. His report card is usually worth showing to his father and mother—A's and B's. On top of that he is a good golf player. He goes around in the 80s and some of his drives are 250 yards.

Henry doesn't look toward golf for success, however. "All the club handles are too short, anyway. I want to be a boxer and a football player, but I can't find anybody to box with me," he said.

Henry's shoes are size 14. The rest of his attire is in proportion. He plays end on the high school football team, center on the basketball team. He drops some baskets in without piking his hand over his head. He played first base in baseball and was utility man on the mound. Henry is a wow in sports!

C. E. Mullins, a six footer, brother of the young giant, claims his big brother eats only about as much as the average thirteen-year-old boy eats, "only it goes farther."

If Henry keeps on growing—and he doesn't want to—he will, by averages with normally sized humans—leap into something like ten feet of humanity—a world's record. However, doctors are going to give some treatments to that little pituitary gland.

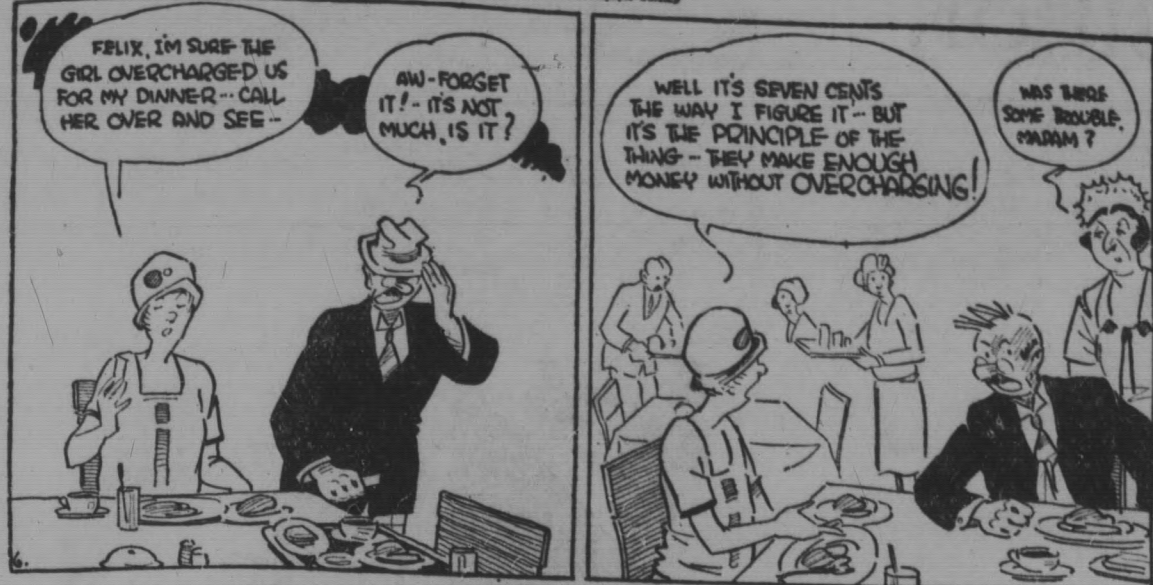

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

Why Hot Air Rises

Heat does not affect the power of gravitation, for any given weight will weigh just the same regardless of the heat applied. However, heat generally causes a thing to swell and it occupies more space. It is therefore lighter in proportion to the space it occupies. This relation of volume and weight causes warm air or hot water to rise. (© 1929 Western Newspaper Union.)

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless, Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

Mother and Daughter Praise Vegetable Compound

Johnson City, N. Y. —"My daughter was only 20 years old, but for two years she worked in misery. She was all run-down, nervous, had aches and pains and no appetite. I was taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with good results so she decided to try it. Before she had taken two bottles her appetite was better, she was more cheerful and was able to work. I cannot praise your medicine too highly. It is wonderful for mothers and for daughters. It's surely 'a friend in need'."—Mrs. L. E. Hall, 223 Floral Avenue, Johnson City, N. Y.

SAME PRESCRIPTION HE WROTE IN 1892

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as today. People lived normal lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings. The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe bowel stimulant. This prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative. It has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, distention, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds, fevers. At your druggist, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

Europe and Democracy

WE WERE told during the World War that we were fighting for two noble purposes; first, to end all future wars, and second, to establish universal democracy in all of the countries of the world. No one will seriously deny that the American people as a whole were moved by the two noble purposes and that these were not carried out can be laid to post-war developments.

That they have not been carried out is evidenced by the facts. The nations of Europe do not believe that war has been ended for all time to come. If they believed so there would not be now so much feverish preparation for war, nor so much mutual distrust and jealousy. Nor has universal democracy been established in spite of the tremendous sacrifices made in men and money. As a matter of fact, instead of adopting democracy, Europe seems in many instances to have veered toward autocracy. Germany, of course, has a new republican form of government which seems to be functioning pretty well under natural and inevitable handicaps. But in some of the other countries the situation is different. For there are now a half a dozen nations in Europe ruled by dictators. The sixth one, Jugo-Slavia, took on its dictator just a few days ago. The list is an imposing one: Italy, Russia, Spain, Poland, Greece and Jugo-Slavia.

It would seem therefore that the coming of universal democracy in Europe is not yet at hand. The revolution in Russia, heralded as bringing in the brotherhood of man, has resulted in one of the most tyrannical governments in the history of the world, in which opposition to the government and free speech are not tolerated. In Italy, Mussolini took charge when it seemed that the country was slipping into communism, and dictators took over the reins of government in Poland, Greece and Spain to stop what threatened to be civil war or a dissolution of the government. And now Jugo-Slavia, the latest in the family of autocrats, was compelled to adopt the dictator form to save itself from serious trouble. In this latter country a serious difference has broken out between the Serbs who had their own government in 1914 and the Croats who were under the authority of the Austrian Empire at the beginning of the war. The two nations have apparently been unable to get along under one government.

Their political history and their present political differences are too complicated to be detailed here. Suffice it to say that they form only another angle to the complicated European political puzzle. In America where we have forty-eight states all under the same government, with free trade and a free exchange of ideas among all, it is difficult for us to understand all this. But we can understand that with so many vexing problems in the political situation in Europe it is better for us to stay out of the muddle so far as possible.

Pseudo Science

A CERTAIN manufacturer of a dress fabric which is said to let through to the skin the ultra-violet rays of the sun, and actually does let through a minor part of them; claims also that an equally important property of this fabric is "its power to keep the body in a constant bath of electricity," due to the fact that, being a non-conductor of electricity, it "does not allow the natural electricity of the body to be dissipated as is the case with ordinary clothing."

We have more than a suspicion that this bright idea, with its air of plausibility, originated in the overheated brain of some writer of advertising matter certainly no one trained in science wrote it.

Advised of this far-reaching scientific discovery, one of our good friends suggests that it would be a great boon to humanity if the same manufacturer would put on the market a new kind of fabric which would keep the aura within the confines of the body, with a possible flap valve which could be opened at propitious moments to release the invisible aural charms of the wearer. This enveloping garment would prevent contamination of the aura, which is alleged to extend several feet from the periphery of the skin, and might also protect it from being stepped on by careless pedestrians.

The ability to help others to see comes from the clearness of our own vision—Calvin Coolidge.

Getting Rid of Noise

A FEW YEARS AGO a man who devoted his life to the eradication of noise would have been considered a crank or half witted. Little attention was paid to noise and noises multiplied and increased. A few years ago, however, the effect of noise upon human beings began to be studied seriously, and today there are scientists who are turning their attention to this phase of modern living.

But noise prevention is only in its infancy. We do not yet fully understand to what extent we are affected by the sounds to which we are subjected. It is a movement, however, which will bring good results, and some day, we hope, we may enjoy the quiet of the country in the heart of the business district of San Francisco.

It has been found that the clack, clack, clack of a dozen or so typewriters in a room cuts down the efficiency and health of those who were subjected to the noise day after day, and noiseless typewriters have been evolved to meet the need.

The clatter of the pneumatic riveter is being replaced by ark welding in busy downtown districts because of the noise it makes. Instruments have been devised to measure the amount of noise present at different points in cities, and little by little noise is being reduced.

Department of Education

PRESIDENT-ELECT HOOVER has been stated as considering the multitude of unnecessary contacts with Government bureaus and overlapping of authority as being one of the greatest difficulties of business in its dealing with the government. His contention is, it was stated, that if these scattered activities could be grouped under a single authority it would promote efficiency and reduce expenses. He further contends that divided responsibility, with the absence of centralized authority, prevents constructive and consistent development of broad national policies.

For a number of years educators and those interested in the progress of education in the United States have realized the inadequacy of bureaus to cope with the national problems relative to public education and have sought the enactment of legislation providing for a Department of Education with a Secretary in the President's Cabinet. Yet Congress has taken no action on the Curtis-Reed bill providing for such a department. The supporters of this measure expect that favorable action will be taken by Congress during Mr. Hoover's administration.

Food of the Future

CONSIDER man's present-day food: It comes from the animal kingdom. What elements constitute flesh and vegetable foods? They are, for the most part, composed of sugars, fats, and proteins. In flesh food these food substances have usually been appropriated, by the animal, from the plant which the animal has eaten. In vegetable food, these food substances have been converted, by the plant, into food from the elements that the plant has taken from the air, the sun, and the soil. Thus, man's food, whether animal or vegetable, is really elemental substance taken from the air, the sun and the soil.

Man's food-obtaining process—via plant, sometimes via animal—is a long one and a roundabout one, often a very wasteful one. Often, in the process, life is destroyed and energy is wasted. What a wonderful thing if the "middlemen"—in this case, the animal and the plant—could be eliminated as food providers and man could go direct to the "producer" (elements) for his food!

Will man ever be able to do this? Scientists tell us that man will come to it eventually, although that time may be eons away.

For instance, read what the Associated Press has predicted for future man:

Possible menu for a day—ages in the future—
Breakfast—Products from sunlight sources.
Luncheon—Products of the air.
Dinner—Food from sea water.

The possible evolution of foods pleasing to the palate which would give such an imaginary menu a basis in real fact is sketched in a paper prepared by Dr. H. E. Barnard of Indianapolis for the American Chemical Society.

The Last Laugh

SOMETHING less than a hundred years ago the city fathers of a small town in a New England state were debating over the advisability of changing from whale oil to the newly discovered kerosene for street lamps.

The town was stirred by the controversy until finally a citizen, doubtless of the reactionary school, contributed this bit of verse:

"It would not cause us great surprise
If some presumptuous ass
Should snatch the lightning from the
The skies
Or light our streets with gas."

The author has been forgotten. But he unknowingly proved himself a true prophet. What was conceived in ire and sent on its way as a bit of withering satire became an actuality, probably within the author's lifetime.

Songs of Plain Folks

By James Lewis Hays

The Open Country

I love the open country
With the sunrise on her breast,
When summer days, like soldiers,
Ride out upon their quest.
My heart soars with the meadow lark
On dawn-embellished wings,
Thrilled with the open country
And with the song he sings.

I love the open country—
And the country road at morn.
With foxglove shining down along
The head-rows of the corn;
Morning-glories opened,
Primroses peeping through,
And all the world just smiling back
At the sunrise, from the dew.

We who drive the furrow
Through the open country fields—
Who reap the yellow harvest
Her black loam richly yields—
May we love the country,
And lay no foolish plan
To leave, in search of shadow wealth,
The home God made for man.

Legislature Plans Tuberculosis War

By ESTO BROUGHTON

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 27.—The Boggs Bernard Bovine tuberculosis bills due for consideration in the committees of both houses of the legislature this week, appear practically certain of passage as soon as the legal way is cleared by the enactment of the Budget Bill, it was predicted today by agricultural authorities.

Realizing that the "contented" cow is the healthy cow, farmers generally have come to the support of the tuberculosis bills which provide for the complete eradication of tuberculosis among cattle in selected control areas.

Compensation would be supplied from a state fund for the dairymen of San Mateo county if it is included in the eradication area. The compensation to owners for cattle slaughtered in such clean-up work shall not exceed 75 percent of the appraised value, now more than $100 for any one grade of animal nor $200 for any one purebred animal, the bill provides.

An appropriation of $1,131,200 being asked, $900,000 of which will be applied to the indemnification of owners, the bills must be held on the files of each house until the budget bill is finally disposed of because of a constitutional prohibition against the prior consideration of any other finance measure.

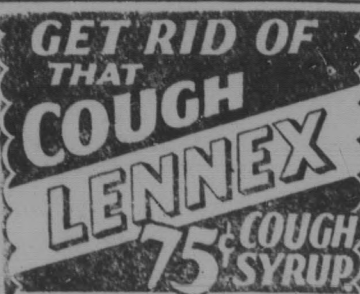

County Livestock Inspector Must Attend Meetings

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 28.—(CNE)—Dan Emmett, the Flying Assemblyman in the lower house, does not ignore livestock because of his plane.

One of the first bills to be passed by the Assembly this week was Emmett's requiring the county livestock inspector of San Mateo county to attend meetings ordered by the board of supervisors.

Coastside to be Boosted at Meet

San Franciscans, Oaklanders and all residents of the bay region owning holdings at Salada Beach, Sharp's Haven and surrounding country will have the opportunity to attend the regular meeting of the Salada Beach Chamber of Commerce to be held on Sunday, March 3rd at 1:30 p. m. at the Salada Beach School house. The Coast Transportation Company is providing a bus which will leave San Francisco from No. 75 5th street at noon on Sunday, arriving at Salada Beach in time for this meeting and leaving for San Francisco at the conclusion of the business of the day.

Appearing on the program as the speaker of the day, Thomas L.

Hickey, supervisor of San Mateo county, will speak on the subject of coast-wide development, announced Clarence J. Stafford, president of the newly-formed Chamber of Commerce.

Hickey has been a resident of San Mateo county for many years and is thoroughly familiar with the progress of this ever-growing section of California.

J. E. Davies, secretary-treasurer of the Chamber of Commerce, reported on the progress of the membership committee and committee chairmen will give their reports.

THE RECORD-BREAKING NEW NASH "400" from 9th to 4th place in just 6 months!

IN DOLLARS AND CENTS VOLUME, ACCORDING TO OFFICIAL FIGURES (Ford Excluded)

ON July 1, 1928, Nash stood ninth in dollars and cents volume of sales, exclusive of Ford, according to the official figures for the year ending at that date.

On January 1, 1929, just six months later, according to the same official figures, Nash stood fourth.

In this very brief period the new Nash "400" has completely changed the automobile picture of America.

With unmistakable enthusiasm, motorists everywhere have placed their stamp of approval upon this new Nash —making it, by a tremendous margin, the outstanding motor success of modern automobile history.

Why? Because Nash gives them the Twin-Ignition motor . . . gives them cars equipped with the Bijur centralized chassis lubrication system . . . with hydraulic shock absorbers . . . with bumpers front and rear . . . spare tire lock . . . cars completely, luxuriously equipped . . . at no extra cost.

Ninth to fourth place in just six months because the new Nash "400" is the only car of all the new cars with every new and progressive feature!

The Bank and How to Use It

Safe Deposit, two very ordinary words that tell a vast measure of interesting human history, also tell how well the average bank guards the valuable entrusted to its care. There is nothing safer than safe deposit.

A study of the safe deposit system in the modern bank quickly convinces the investigator that the mere act of placing valuable in a big concrete chamber with a door composed of several tons of impregnable steel is only on feature of the safeguarding process, and perhaps not the most important feature at that. The protection of valuable once they are under lock and key is an elaborate process in itself.

In this bank the customer desiring safe deposit service is given a signature card to sign. On this he also answers a few questions regarding his birth and other vital facts so that he might be able to identify himself through means other than his signature. Then he is given two keys to the box he has selected and is shown the position of the box in the vault. After that, he is complete master of his safe deposit fortunes. He has all the keys that will actually open the box. If he loses them is no way of getting into the receptacle by way of a key. In such an emergency an expert must be called and the door of the box must be drilled open in the presence of two of the bank's officers.

True, the vault attendant has a key, but that merely prepares the lock for the customer's key. Neither key used alone will open the receptacle. Therefore, both customer and attendant must be present when a box is taken from its niche. In the case of joint tenancy, that is where the keys are held by husband and wife or by partners, one or both parties may be present by agreement when the box is opened. In the event of the death of a joint tenant the bank must be given proof of such death and a representative of the State Controller's office must be present the first time the box is opened thereafter. This is to officially protect the interests of both the living and the dead.

Ordinarily a customer might figure that the precautions noted would be sufficient, but they are not enough for the bank. When a customer calls to open his box he is given a ticket by an attendant known as the verifying clerk. On this he writes his signature. The verifying clerk compares this with the signature on record. The date and time of the visit are then stamped on the ticket and it is taken up by another attendant, who places it in the files of the department. Thus every call made by every customer to his box can be traced to the day and the minute.

In every instance when the right to open a box is disputed or is covered by a court order, attachment or other legal action, a red seal is placed in the customer's keyhole. This seal, a long, thin strip of metal, prevents anyone from opening the box until it is removed by the manager of the department. When given the proper order he inserts another special key in the lock and draws the seal forth. This key will not open the box. It will merely release the seal. A red seal means that the box has been closed for some serious purpose. A white seal means that the box is closed for some minor reason, such as a default of the periodical box rental. Most of the precautions noted are taken also for valuable too bulky to go into a safe deposit box, such as suitcases, trunks and so forth. In some banks these valuable have a special vault of their own. Very often the articles left in storage in a bank's safe deposit vaults may be unvisited or untouched for years. Sometimes they are forgotten altogether. But the bank cares for them the same as it cares for the most valuable object or the most costly security. There are no grades or degrees to the protection offered by safe deposit.

Jos. Romero Is Freed on Parole

Jos. Romero, Redwood City wood chopper, who was sentenced to a term of six months in the county jail for his connection in the shooting of Frank Lopez of this city last year, was this week paroled from the jail after having served half of his sentence.

Lopez, who was shot during what was described in court as a wedding party, died at the Veterans' hospital in Menlo Park.

Growth of State Shown in Use of Electricity - Gas

Community growth in northern California is indicated through data released by the Pacific Gas & Electric Company covering gain in consumers and increase in use of the company's commodities. At the close of the year 1928, the company was serving 1,004,340 consumers, an increase of 36,623 over the previous year.

Of this substantial gain the largest increases were shown in San Francisco Division with a gain of 10,206; East Bay Division, including Contra Costa and Alameda counties, 9,901; San Jose Division, including the peninsula south of San Francisco city limits to Los Gatos, 6,415; Sacramento Division, 2,670 and the Coast Valleys Division, including San Benito and Monterey counties, 2,089.

In proportion to the number of consumers connected, the Coast Valleys territory made the best showing for the year, having a 10.74 per cent gain.

The connected load of electrical equipment on the company's system aggregated 2,150,000 horsepower, an increase of 175,043 horsepower or a gain of 8.95% over the year 1927.

The month of December recorded the highest month's output in the history of the company, both in the gas and electric departments.

CARE AT HOSPITAL APPRECIATED

Redwood City, Calif.
 Feb. 21, 1929

Dear Editor:

Having recently had a near relative cared for at the Redwood City Hospital, and so come to know something of the spirit of the place and of the service rendered, I feel moved to ask you to give publicity to this expression of my appreciation of the care and attention given, and of the splendid spirit of cheer and co-operation with which members of the family and visiting friends have been received at all times. Well may the city be proud of such a splendid institution. Small and incomplete, of course, when compared with the older and more strongly backed hospitals of the peninsula, but what is lacking in space and elaborate equipment is more than made up in the spirit and efficiency of the service rendered.

The institution has had a rather checkered career but since June, 1928, under the management of Mrs. B. McFarland, has been successful in every way and its character is above question.

Mrs. McFarland is a graduate of the Providence Training School of Oakland, and has had a long experience in both private and public hospitals. She therefore brought to her work here, the wealth of training and experience necessary to the highest success.

The hospital as now arranged has both private rooms and public wards with day and night nurses in attendance at all times. A splendid kitchen and dietary service is maintained under Mrs. McFarland's personal supervision.

Besides a well-equipped emergency room there is a very commodious, well-equipped, and well-lighted surgery, where major operations of the most delicate and difficult nature may be performed with the same care and efficiency as in the larger hospitals. There is also a well arranged and comfortable delivery room to meet the ever increasing demands for hospital care and treatment of maternity cases.

A decided advance step is being taken toward the installation of a complete and up-to-date physiotherapy department with graduate operators, for handling of both male and female cases, and future plans include suitable equipment to equal any modern sanatorium. This is a needed service and should meet with an immediate and hearty response from the community at large, as well as from the medical profession.

New Census To Be Taken in November

It has been announced by Congressman A. M. Free that the next federal census will be taken about November 1st of this year. For the purpose of the census the counties of San Mateo, Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, San Benito and Monterey will be grouped together in one district with headquarters at San Jose. A supervisor of the census will have charge of this district and will have under him about 200 enumerators. The enumerators are to receive four cents for each name in towns and cities and a rate yet to be determined for rural sections.

Congressman Free of this district is very anxious to have a very careful census taken and has suggested that if persons will send in the names of responsible individuals, who are willing to assist in this work, he will submit the names to the Director of the Census.

It is planned to complete the actual count within two weeks and to announce the result immediately in the district. Everyone should co-operate in this work as it is very vital that California should have a proper census taken at this time.

Cats Prohibited In Nation's Parks

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 28.—(CNB)—Tubby is taboo vacation! When Redwood City folk go on their summer outing poor "kitty" must stay home.

That is if the Cat bill sponsored in the Senate today by Senator Snodgrass becomes a law. Young has already secured the O. K. of the Fish and Game Committee to the measure which prohibits any one taking the family pet in the state or national forests. The solon claims felines soon revert to a state of nature and spoil hunting and fishing by poaching.

22,037 CARS REGISTERED IN COUNTY

County's Share of Fees Will Be $46,669.72

There are 22,037 machines registered in San Mateo county this year, according to figures just released by the division of motor vehicles of California. The division in its report shows that in the state there are 1,846,412 machines registered. By counties Los Angeles leads the list with 740,414. San Francisco is second with 114,171.

Of the fees collected by the division the various counties of the state and to the state highway commission for road work the sum of $7,820,621.19.

One half of this huge amount, or $3,910,310.59 will go directly to the highway commission. The other half will be apportioned to the counties after deductions totaling $751,144.65 are made for the salaries of traffic officers.

This deduction will not be necessary next year if the legislation to create a state-wide traffic patrol is given approval, as the officers will then be paid directly from operating funds instead of from county apportionments.

The apportionment, largest in the history of the state, is a gain of $359,404.14 over 1927 and represents approximately 89 percent of the total registration receipts. The division therefore used only about 11 percent of the registration receipts for its operating expenses although the law permits the use of 25 percent.

The apportionment of the counties is based on a total fee paid registration for the year of 1,846,412 vehicles. The share each county receives is based on the number of vehicles it registers.

Los Angeles county with a registration of 740,414 vehicles will receive the lion's share of the money, its total being $1,568,042.25. San Francisco, with 114,171 vehicles will receive $305,323.72, the second largest share. Alameda is third with 133,443 vehicles and an apportionment of $322,604.09.

New School Bill To Permit Fusion of Minor Districts

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 28.—(CNB)—The Slater substitute for the County Unit School Bill up for final passage in the senate this week would permit the consolidation of elementary districts within a joint or union high school district in the county of San Mateo upon the petition of either a majority of the school board members of the heads of families demanding it.

Within 20 days after the filing of such a petition the county school superintendent would have to call an election on the consolidation issue, according to the terms of the bill.

The measure in form, would not compel any county to avail itself of the privilege of continuous grand jury service unless it wished. Under a limitation, no person would be allowed to serve for more than three consecutive years.

History told as it would be written today

How a King Died Like a King

As a monarch, Louis XVI of France was a signal failure. His character was soft, his mentality was dull. His own diary reveals that he neither tried to understand nor cared to undertake the duties of being a king. He preferred hunting to the business of statecraft; he rather would spend his leisure hours at making locks or at amorous pastimes than in considering the problems of his ministerial advisers or the woes of his oppressed people. Only in his religious principles and in his devotion to his family—a rare trait among rulers of his day—was he steadfast and determined. In coping with the popular discontent which was to culminate in the revolution and the terror, he was alternately feeble in his policies and doubtful in his promises. Largely by his own weakness he involved the fate which was to engulf him, his court, his dynasty and his life—the so-called Last Dauphin. Under the blade of the guillotine, along with countless thousands of his fellow-countrymen had countrymen—nobles, aristocrats, commoners—he paid the price of all penalties for his own weakness.

It was in the concluding hours of his mortal span—during his trial and in his death—call and on the scaffold—that Louis XVI rose to heights of manliness and dignity to which none who knew him in his royal days would have dreamed him capable. Next only to his wife, Marie Antoinette, he was the most conspicuous victim of the great uprising; certainly he was one of the most gallant-behaving among all the multitude who lost their heads in the Place de la Revolution.

These two men who were constantly with him during his last night and his last morning on earth—Clery, a faithful valet, and the Abbe Henry Essex Edgeworth de Firmont, an Irish-born priest—left behind them most graphic accounts of the scenes which preceded and marked the execution. Both of them risked destruction for themselves by their devotion to the fallen king, but both weathered the terror and bequeathed to posterity moving stories of Louis' dying gallantry.

By reading what they wrote we may get a graphic picture of this outstanding tragedy.

At half an hour past midnight the king re-entered his bedchamber. Clery goes on to describe what next ensued:

"I undressed the king; and, as I was going to roll his hair, he said, 'It does not signify.' Afterwards, when he was in bed, as I was drawing his curtains, 'Clery, you will call me at five o'clock.'

"He was scarcely in bed before he fell into a profound sleep which lasted without interruption till five. Father Edgeworth, whom his majesty had persuaded to take some rest, threw himself upon my bed; and I passed the night on a chair in the king's chamber, praying God to support his strength and his courage.

"On hearing five o'clock strike I began to light the fire. The noise I made awoke the king, who, drawing his curtains, asked if it had struck five. I said it had. 'I have slept soundly,' said his majesty; 'I stood in need of it; yesterday was a fatiguing day to me. Where is Mr. Edgeworth?' I answered, 'On my bed.' 'And where were you all night?' 'On this chair,' 'I am sorry for it,' said the king. 'Oh! sir,' replied I, 'I can think of myself at this moment.' He gave me his hand and tenderly pressed mine."

The priest bears testimony that the king heard mass while kneeling on the floor with no cushion beneath him and afterwards prayed. His air was calm, his face was composed, he did not once tremble. At eight o'clock came the escort of soldiers who were to lead him forth to death. Of them he asked first that the valet and the priest should not be punished for their services to him, and that the former should be permitted to attend his son, the Dauphin.

"His majesty (says Clery) had his will in his hand and, addressing a municipal officer named Jacques Roux, a former priest who happened to stand before the others, said, 'I beg you to give this paper to the queen—to my wife.' 'It is no business of mine,' replied he, refusing to take it. 'I am come here to conduct you to the scaffold.' His majesty then turned to Gobeau, another municipal officer. 'I beg,' said he, 'that you will give this paper to my wife; you may read it.' On the top of the stairs he met Mathey, the warden of the tower, to whom he said, 'I spoke with some little quickness to you the day before yesterday; do not take it ill.' Mathey made no answer and even affected to turn from the king while he was speaking."

Citizens Line Path to Death.

Father Edgeworth was permitted to ride with Louis in the carriage which bore him to the place of execution; soldiers rode with them. Of that dreadful journey the priest set down this account:

"The king, finding himself where he could neither speak to me nor be spoken to without witness, kept a profound silence. I presented him with my Breviary, the only book I had with me, and he seemed to accept it with pleasure; he appeared anxious that I should point out to him the psalms that were most suited to his situation, and he recited them attentively with me. . . . The procession lasted almost two hours. The streets were lined with citizens, all armed, some with pikes and some with guns, and the carriage was surrounded by a body of troops, formed of the most desperate people of Paris. As another presentation, they had placed before the horses a great number of drums, intended to drown any noise or murmur in favor of the king."

"The carriage proceeded thus in silence to the Place de Louis XV and stopped in the middle of a large square that had been left round the scaffold. This space was surrounded with cannon, and beyond, an armed multitude extended as far as the eye could reach. As soon as the king perceived that the carriage stopped he turned and whispered to me, 'We are arrived, if I mistake not.' My silence answered that we were. One of the guards came to open the carriage door, and the gentlemen would have jumped out; but the king stopped them and leaning his arm on my knee, 'Gentlemen,' said he, with the tone of regal majesty, 'I recommend to you this good man; take care that after my death no insult be offered to him—I charge you to prevent it. . . .'

"As soon as the king had left the carriage, three guards surrounded him and would have taken off his clothes; but he repulsed them with haughtiness; he undressed himself, untied his neckcloth, opened his shirt and arranged it himself. The guards surrounded him again and would have seized his hands. 'What are you attempting?' said the king, drawing back his hands. 'To bind you,' answered the wretches. 'To bind me?' said the king with an indignant air. 'No! I shall never consent to that; do what you have been ordered, but you shall never bind me.' The guards insisted; they raised their voices and seemed to wish to call on others to assist them.

Last Words a Prayer for France.

"Perhaps this was the most terrible moment of this most dreadful morning; another instant and the best of kings would have received from his rebellious subjects indignities too horrible to mention—indignities that would have been to him more insupportable than death. Such was the feeling expressed on his countenance. Turning towards me he looked at me steadily, as if to ask my advice. I replied, 'Sir, in this new insult I only see another trait of resemblance between your majesty and the Savior who is about to recompense you.' At these words he raised his eyes to heaven with an expression that can never be described.

"You are right," said he; "nothing less than his example should make me submit to such a degradation." Then turning to the guards, 'Do what you will; I will drink of the cup, even to the dregs.'

"The path leading to the scaffold was extremely rough and difficult to pass; the king was obliged to lean on my arm and, from the slowness with which he proceeded, I feared for a moment that his courage might fail; but what was my astonishment when, arrived at the last step, I felt that he suddenly let go my arm, and I saw him cross with a firm foot the breadth of the whole scaffold; he silenced by his look alone, fifteen or twenty drums that were placed opposite to him; and in a voice so loud that it must have been heard at the Pont Tournant, I heard him pronounce distinctly these memorable words:

"I die innocent of all the crimes laid to my charge; I pardon those who have occasioned my death; and I pray to God that the blood you are now going to shed may never be visited on France."

"He was proceeding, when a man on horseback, in the national uniform, waved his sword and with a ferocious cry ordered the drums to beat. Many voices were at the same time heard encouraging the executioners. They seemed reanimated themselves and, seizing with violence the most virtuous of kings, they dragged him under the ax of the guillotine which with one stroke severed his head from his body. All this passed in a moment. The youngest of the guards, who seemed about eighteen, immediately seized the head and showed it to the people as he walked round the monstrous ceremony with the most atrocious and indecent gestures. At first an awful silence prevailed; at length some cries of 'Vive la Republique' were heard. By degrees the voices multiplied, and in less than ten minutes this cry, a thousand times repeated, became the universal shout of the multitude, and every hat was in the air."

Kick Is Only Weapon

Nature Gave Ostrich

The full-grown ostrich sometimes weighs more than 300 pounds and is as much as nine feet high. Its most marked characteristic is the fact that he has only two toes—the third and fourth—on each foot.

In South America there is another large bird—the rhea—which is also called an ostrich. This bird can be distinguished from the true ostrich by its having three toes instead of two. According to the biologists the original ostrich had five toes. However, the modern bird can probably run faster with the two it has now than could his ancestors with five.

Arabian legend has it that the ostrich is the result of union between the camel and a dodo bird. Certainly it inherited some of the worst characteristics of both. Its awkward shape, the uselessness of its wings, its seeming lack of pleasure in life, all indicate that it is one of nature's errors.

The one offensive weapon at the command of the ostrich is its foot. The terrific downward stroke of its huge toe driven by a muscular thigh the thickness of a leg of mutton is easily the equal of the kick of a full-grown horse. A blow from it will break a rib or the backbone of an ordinary animal. In addition to the force of the blow, the sharp edge can tear skin and flesh like a military sabre.

When the bird is plucked the plucker usually leans on him from behind, since no ostrich can kick to the rear. The philosophy of the ostrich seems to be on a too-prudent-to-attack basis, as I have never seen them attack one another. But no doubt beasts of prey are wary of that vicious downward blow, as I have never seen signs of an ostrich having been killed by another animal—Martin Johnson in the Saturday Evening Post.

Why They Call Maranville "Rabbit"

All was not venom between the Cardinals and the Yanks in the last world's series. One of the umpires on bases overheard a conversation when two citizens of Springfield, Mass., crossed paths as Leo Durocher went out to second base to relieve Lazzari and met Rabbit Maranville on the way in.

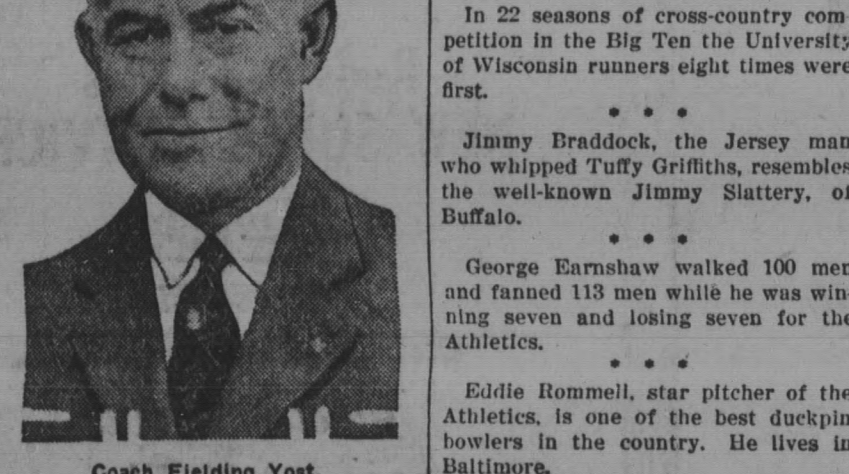

"Walter," said Durocher, "Why do they call you Rabbit? Because you used to be stewed so often?"

"Some guy in New England christened me in 1912 when I was about your age, but twice as fast and not half so fresh," retorted Rabbit.

Modern Schools Must Be Good Training Fields

"A century ago," says Fielding H. Yost, of Michigan, "schools existed for intellectual development alone. They were for the preacher, the teacher, the government official, the lawyer or the doctor. They catered to an aristocracy."

"The college of today has changed. The objective is wider. Although some school men still cling to the old idea, most educators and nearly all the taxpayers now realize that to develop intellectuals only is not sufficient. Along with mental training must go physical and moral development. The trained mind must be housed in a sound body and actuated by high desires. The modern preparatory schools and universities must be all-around democratic training fields for life."

Coach Fielding Yost.

The sliding seat for rowing was invented by J. C. Babcock, one of the founders of the New York Athletic club, about 1870.

Many a man who has kept himself informed of all the player trades in baseball since the close of the season cannot name five of the country's new governors.

Winston-Salem, N. C., had a player named Rye in its lineup during the last season and in several games Bud Welsler, a reserve, was sent in to pinch-hit for him.

There is one good thing about the professional sport; no matter how tough or blunt, he never has himself photographed with chin or brow resting on his hand.

The official paid attendance for the California-Georgia Tech game on New Year's day was 60,404. It was the largest crowd ever to witness a Tournament of Roses game.

Pitcher Elmer Tutwiler, twenty-three-year-old recruit obtained by the Pittsburgh Pirates last August from Savannah of the Southeastern league, has been released outright to Omaha of the Western league.

British lawn tennis prospects this year are bright. The construction of over 1,400 hard courts during the past year has been a development in the required direction—fast and aggressive play.

Among those who tried to get the football coaching job at Texas A. and M. when Dana X. Bible resigned was Johnny Maulbetsch, former Michigan star, and at present coach of the Oklahoma Aggies.

The Cubs apparently have cut the strings on Tommy Sewell, youngest of the Alabama baseball family. The Cub farm, Reading, sent Tommy to Springfield in a deal for John Wight, third baseman.

Ping Bodie, the Italian fence buster of San Francisco and nationally known baseball player, has given up the national pastime for good and has opened a gasoline service station and coffee shop in San Francisco, Calif.

Joe Marty Signed

Purchase of Joe Marty, 190-pound right handed pitcher, from the Asheville club of the South Atlantic league is announced by officials of the Hollywood Pacific Coast league club.

Marty, twenty-three years of age, two years ago was taken to the New York Yankees spring training camp, but was found to be a bit "green" for the big show. He was sent to Albany by the American league club. Last year he won eleven games and lost six for Albany.

FAMOUS JOCKEY PRAISES ERVAST

Roscoe Goose Passes on Tia Juana Sensation.

Perhaps the cold Ervast after all is a fair kind of a race horse and will justify the confidence most everybody in California has placed in him "to beat any three-year-old in America."

Such a good judge of horses as Roscoe Goose, famous as a jockey a few years ago and who more recently has gained fame as a trainer, puts his stamp of approval on the fleet son of Pacines.

Trainer Goose, at Tia Juana with a division of the Johnson N. Camden stable, does not become hiliarious in his enthusiasm for Ervast. But he does say "Ervast is a colt of the conformation that will carry weight and also has extreme speed over a distance of ground."

To those who know Roscoe Goose that's putting a pretty high mark on Ervast.

Of all the trainers—old and young—we have met, Goose is among the most conservative. He rode Donerail to victory in the Kentucky derby of 1913 and has accomplished numerous feats on the turf that would excite him a bit if he cared to carry his knowledge of horses and how they run to the extreme.

But Goose has never been known to go that far. Rather, he hits the other extreme. If he's training a horse that stands out to win by a city block, Goose will tell you, "I think this horse has a chance to win today."

And because he says Ervast looks like a real running horse even after a hasty inspection of that this native son of thoroughbred of California cannot be too lightly regarded, regardless of what sort of horses he is running against.

Goose reports that he timed the colt for the first half mile in one of his races in .34 1-5. And he added, "He was just breezing along in front by five lengths."

There is at least one Kentuckian pulling hard for an Ervast triumph in the Tia Juana derby, Coffroth handicapper, and even in the Kentucky derby, C. W. Hay, general manager of the Washington park race track, in Chicago, own. Pacines and has the sire of the colt at the head of his thoroughbred stud at Scotland farm, near Frankfort, Ky.

Until Ervast came along Sir Peter was the most famous son of Pacines. However, Pacines has produced many winners, despite the fact that only a few of them have ever reached stake class.

Manager McGraw Waited

Forty Years for Star

John McGraw has obtained a pitcher from his old home town after waiting forty years.

Into the New York Giants' office recently came Albert C. Kenny from Olean, N. Y. Kenny was the manager of the Olean team in the New York State league in 1889 and John J. McGraw was his third baseman, shortstop, second baseman and pinch hitter.

"Here's that ball player I've been trying to get for you forty years," announced Kenny. And then he introduced Floyd Johnson, a twenty-one-year-old boy who pitches left-handed and who comes from Truxton.

"Sign him," said McGraw. "I was born and raised in Truxton and I will take a chance on this lad."

Look Alike to Goose

Goose Goslin, sterling outfielder of Washington, is equally good against right or left-handed pitching. The Goose has recovered the full use of his throwing arm and will star again for Clark Griffith this year.

Uhle to Undergo Knife to Regain His Pitching Form

George Uhle, veteran American league pitcher, who recently was sold by the Cleveland Indians to the Detroit Tigers, is to have his right arm treated by Dr. Charles Spencer of Los Angeles, doctor of ailing baseball arms. In an effort to regain his old-time twirling form.

Uhle is being sent by Frank Navin, owner of the Tigers. After an operation, Uhle will join his teammates at their spring training camp at Phoenix, Ariz.

Japs Can't Hit

Bob Shawkey, former Yankee pitcher, now with the Montreal Royals, was a visitor at the Yankee offices after his recent trip to Japan with T. Cobb and other big leaguers. "The Japanese college boys," according to Bob, "are great fielders, runners and throwers, and fast in everything around baseball, but they don't hit the ball. The Waseda university team wanted me to stay there and coach them." Shawkey has a small bone loose in his pitching arm.

Quart of Water Cleans Kidneys

Take a Little Salt if Your Back Hurts, or Bladder is Troubling You

No man or woman can make a mile take by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Eating too much rich food creates acids, which excite the kidneys. They become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood. Then we get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys, or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, or attended with sediment, irregular of passage, or tinged by a sensation of scalding, begin drinking a quart of water of each day, also get about four ounces of Epsom Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys may act fine.

This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush and stimulate the kidneys; also to help neutralize the acids in the system, so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take daily to keep the blood pure, thereby often avoiding serious kidney complications.

Utilizing Fireflies

Cuban negroes, going about at night, fasten a firefly to each big toe, to light their way along some dark path. They also make lanterns out of gourds hollowed out and perforated with many small holes inside of which are placed several of the big fireflies.

One of the best ways to keep from growing old is to tinker with the machine while the engine is running in a closed garage.—Louisville Times.

Largest Fixed Star

The Naval observatory says that Alpha Scorpii (Antares) is the largest fixed star of which we have reasonably accurate measurements. Its diameter is about 400,000,000 miles. It is 340 times as large as the sun and 125,000,000,000 times as large as the earth. Its distance is probably 35 light years. This distance is 20,000,000 times as great as that of the sun from the earth.

Neal's Mother Has Right Idea

Within a few months there will be no more feverish, bilious, headachy, constipated, pale and puny children. That prophecy would surely come true if every mother could see for herself how quickly, easily, and harmlessly the bowels of babies and children are cleansed, regulated, given tone and strength by a product which has proved its merit and reliability to do what is claimed for it to millions of mothers in over fifty years of steadily increasing use.

As mothers find out from using it how children respond to the gentle influence of California Fig Syrup by growing stronger, sturdier and more active daily they simply have to tell other mothers about it. That's one of the reasons for its overwhelming sales of over four million bottles a year.

A Western mother, Mrs. Neal M. Todd, 1701 West 27th St., Oklahoma City, Okla., says: "When my son, Neal, was three years old he began having constipation. I decided to give him California Fig Syrup and in a few days he was all right and looked fine again. This pleased me so much that I have used Fig Syrup ever since for all his colds or little upset spells. It always stops his trouble quick, strengthens him, makes him eat."

Always ask for California Fig Syrup by the full name and see that the carton bears the word "California." Then you'll get the genuine.

MY FAVORITE STORIES

By IRVIN S. COBB

The Oriental Viewpoint

THIS story, it seems to me, is more or less illustrative of a cardinal point of difference between the Oriental philosophy and the Occidental viewpoint as it is reflected in some of the larger American cities. Moreover it has the added advantage of being the recital of an actual occurrence.

A distinguished Japanese sociologist, who spoke good English, was touring the country a few years ago with a view to studying our ways and institutions. He reached New York, bringing letters of introduction to a well-known native scientist. The New Yorker arranged a day of sightseeing for the distinguished visitor.

The latter was quite anxious to study traffic conditions. He had heard of the Brooklyn bridge rush. So the American began the forenoon by taking his guest to Park row where the Jap spent an interested half-hour observing the jam of humanity. The next event on the program was to be a study of uptown congestion.

When the two observers were ready to leave the bridge no taxicab was available, so the guide steered the Japanese aboard a subway local at City Hall station. At the Bridge station he hurried the foreigner out of the car, dragged him through the crush on the platform, and jammed him forcibly aboard a northbound express.

At Grand Central the same thing was repeated. The Oriental was hurried across another platform, led at a trot through a long and winding tunnel, up one flight of stairs and down another and shoved in at the door of a second train from which, eventually, they emerged and climbed to the street.

The American led the way to the lobby of a nearby hotel where, by appointment, the two of them were to meet an official of the police department who had agreed to escort them through Fifth avenue and upper Broadway. They sat down to await his arrival. He was not due for perhaps a half-hour yet.

The Japanese, like most of his countrymen, was a small man. In the journey he had been sorely buffeted about. A careless elbow had jammed his hat down over his eyes, his morning coat was rumpled and his slender toes had been trodden upon. As he rearranged his disordered wardrobe, he said to his companion:

"Would it not have been possible for us to have made the entire journey from where we started to this point where we are now by remaining upon the train which we originally boarded?"

"Oh, yes," said the American, "but you see, by changing from the first local to the express and then back again to another local, we saved three minutes."

"Ah," said the Japanese, "and now what are you going to do with the three minutes?"

Practically No Reason for It

THERE once was a clerk of the hotel in a small Maine town who had a unique way of keeping a diary. Each evening he wrote on the bottom lines of the page of the register for the current date a brief account of the principal daily doings in the community, usually coupled with a summary of his own personal reactions to them. Sometimes his phraseology was quaint but always it was simply descriptive.

A friend of mine was stopping at the hotel, having gone up to Maine on a fishing trip. He fell into the habit of glancing through the back pages of the register, more from the enjoyment he got from the quaint language of the entries than because he was interested in hygone neighborhood history.

On succeeding pages of the book for a week of the early spring of the year previous he found these progressive records of a local tragedy: Tuesday—"While fishing through the ice yesterday, Henry Whippet fell in the Saco river up to his neck. He was towed out and took home."

Wednesday—"Henry Whippet is in bed with a powerful bad cold. His folks are thinking some about calling in a doctor."

Thursday—"Henry Whippet rapidly continuing to get no better. It now looks like he is 'fixing to break out with the pneumonia.'"

Friday—"Henry Whippet is sinking rapidly."

Saturday—"At nine o'clock this morning our esteemed fellow-citizen, Henry J. Whippet, Esq., went to his Maker entirely unaided for."

YOU CAN'T DYE with Good Intentions

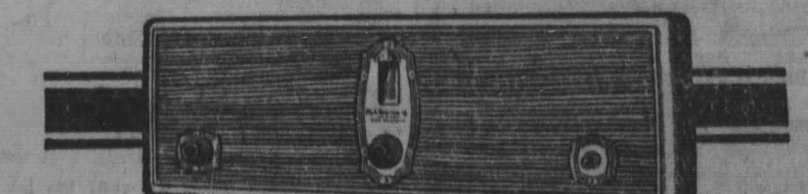

You can get results—after a fashion—with any old dye; but to do work you are proud of takes real anlins. That's why we put them in Diamond Dyes. They contain from three to five times more than other dyes on the market! Cost more to make? Surely. But you get them for the same price as other dyes.

Next time you want to dye, try them. See how easy it is to use them. Then compare the results. Note the absence of that re-dyed look; of streaking or spotting. See that they take none of the life out of the cloth. Observe how the colors keep their brilliance through wear and washing. Your dealer will refund your money if you don't agree. Diamond Dyes are better dyes.

The white package of Diamond Dyes is the original "all-purpose" dye for any and every kind of material. It will dye or fast silk, wool, cotton, linen, rayon or any mixture of materials. The blue package is a special dye, for silk or wool only. With it you can dye your valuable articles of silk or wool with results equal to the finest professional work. When you buy—remember this. The blue package dyes silk or wool only. The white package will dye every kind of goods, including silk and wool. Your dealer has both packages.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE MAY CAUSE ACCIDENTS

Persons with high blood pressure should use extraordinary care in driving automobiles, according to recent experiments conducted by the Personnel Research Federation of New York.

These experiments showed a definite relation between health and motor accidents. Motorists with high blood pressure were found to have more than twice as many accidents as those with normal pressure. The Public Safety Department of the California State Automobile Association, in reporting these conclusions, points out that all drivers should exercise care regardless of whether or not they may be subject to high blood pressure.

Recent statistics reported to the association show the high cost of automobile accidents. There were 27,000 lives lost in the nation last year in traffic accidents and there were 813,000 accidents involving an estimated loss of $850,000,000. California's loss is figured at upwards of $60,000,000 which would mean the payment of an economic loss of six cents on every gallon of gasoline purchased by the motorists.
